The unique essence of design in Paris

“Just add three letters to Paris and you have Paradise,” said the poet Jules Renard. Poetry, beauty, wit, inventiveness... Paris has it all, and lots of it at that. Paris Design Week was born of both this idea and this ideal. In its streets, homes, and workshops, talented people from near and far are busy writing new pages in its creative history. In September, the whole world will come together on Paris to breathe in its inimitable fragrance. In Villepinte, the Maison&Objet show will hold up a mirror to the world's creative talent. Paris Design Week is set to be a versatile journey through the twists and turns of the Parisian terroir.

From 5 to 14 September, the 14th edition of Paris Design Week is the key to accessing the effervescent ecosystem of the artisans of paradise. Far from industry standards, they neither want nor manage to fit into any mould. This culture of uniqueness is the breeding ground for the trends of tomorrow. Here, designers love nothing more than having a hand free to draw, shape, caress, or applaud. Hand in hand, interior designers and craftspeople create fabulous decors. Paris puts style above fashion, which is what makes the city so popular around the world. Every year, new talents are revealed, and Paris Design Week Factory provides a springboard for even the most modest, often future greats.

Schools, creators, and cultural centres, all catalysts for talent, will converge to reveal the vast range of expressions in design. A number of venerable institutions are making their private mansions available for contemporary art. That's the way it's always been, and the way it always will be. Paris will always make time. Paris Design Week invites you to take a stroll, to catch the subtlety of its inspiration.

Locations:

– Rive Gauche: in Saint-Germain-des-Prés, take a stroll through galleries proposed by collectors, major creators, artists, artisans, and interior designers who also publish their own collections of exceptional furniture.

– Opéra / Concorde / Étoile: the flamboyant rive droite, home to great French tradition and international luxury.

– Marais / Bastille / République: the arty heart of the capital, home to young designers, contemporary collectible design galleries, and artisans.

– Palais-Royal / Place des Victoires / Pigalle: the new centre of attraction for all the latest and greatest, with fabric and carpet designers based in and around Rue du Mail.

Emblematic open-air exhibitions

Design sur cours invites designers to take over the courtyards and gardens of some of the world's most remarkable monuments, forming a unique dialogue between classical architecture and contemporary design.

Eau Fraîche at the Hôtel de Soubise

The Musée des Archives nationales is making the 18th-century courtyard of Hôtel de Soubise available for an original, poetic installation by designer Lucas Huillet and perfumer Alexandre Helwani. Eau Fraîche is a ceramic fountain with delightfully scented water. The two artists invite the public to think about global warming and the solutions being considered to tackle it. While water is a natural source of freshness, a specially designed fragrance is capable of stimulating the ion channels in our cells that influence the perception of cold. Who even needs air conditioning?

60 Rue des Francs Bourgeois, 75003 Paris

Paul Cockledge at Hôtel de Sully

London-based designer Paul Cockledge is known for his spectacular installations and his quirky use of materials. Inspired by science, and concerned about the future of the planet, he suspended a luminescent sphere made of 2,500 recently-mined iridescent pieces of coal in Liverpool Cathedral. In Paris, Peter Marino chose his Bourrasque chandelier to light up the Dior flagship on Avenue Montaigne: a flight of luminous sheets of paper, as if carried by the wind. Invited to the Paris Design Week to take over l'Orangerie and gardens of Hôtel de Sully, Place des Vosges, this time he is taking on our reflections in the mirror. They take the form of large compressed balloons, creating an optical confusion of 2D and 3D. The Louis XIII architecture, the sky, the gardens, and, last but not least, the visitors themselves are all part of the setting.

Reflections on street furniture at Bibliothèque Historique de la Ville de Paris

Reinventing the way we use the city by designing street furniture adapted to climate change: this is the theme chosen by Bibliothèque Historique de la Ville de Paris, which is offering up its dual courtyard for innovative solutions. In the lower courtyard, the FIBOIS wood industry will present the 2024 winners of its Bois Français & Design competition, with sun shelters, benches, and compost containers, while in the upper courtyard, Jean-Baptiste Durand, Prisca Razafindrakoto, and Simon Geringer will present their contemporary version of a village square. These three young designers met at Paris Design Week Factory. Seating, shelters, fountains, clocks, bins... The trio co-invent avant-garde urbanism.

Graphisme à ciel ouvert – open-air graphic designs

This itinerary is organised by the Paris Bureau du Design, de la Mode et des Métiers d'Art, with the association Écrire la Ville led by graphic designer Silvia Dore, in partnership with Paris Design Week. Graphic design in urban spaces is a discipline in itself, with the particularity of taking into account the movements of citizens and their bodies. In the former Caserne des Minimes barracks, a contemporary take on graphic design is invited to take over the courtyard walls with an original creation. The Caserne des Minimes is also home to a participatory textile art installation designed by Société Choletaise de Fabrication (SCF), based there and specialising in braiding and lace. Artist Anaïs Beaulieu is inviting people to create a collective work of "urban embroidery" using waste materials made available by the SCF. Graphisme à ciel ouvert also sees the participation of several graphic arts bookshops, including Eyrolles, in the Latin Quarter. During Paris Design Week, the public can watch live demonstrations by students from the Campus Fonderie de l'Image school, led by graphic designer Eddy Terki. A programme of conferences is also planned. The Paris Public School of Art is exhibiting its work at the Quartier Jeunes centre.

Uchronia at Hôtel de la Marine

In the main courtyard, Uchronia studio is set to exhibit a grandiose four-poster bed as an ode to Hôtel de la Marine, the former royal furniture repository. Standing tall like an acropolis on a ceramic platform, it transforms the installation into a public square, inviting visitors to settle in. The ceramic tiles, manufactured by the Dutch brand Palet, echo colours found in the quartermasters' dwellings: the red of Pierre-Élisabeth de Fontanieu's bedroom, and the turquoise blue of the physics cabinet. Atop its pedestal, the XXL ceremonial bed exults an exuberant ensemble of drapes and cushions.

2 Place de la Concorde, 75008 Paris

Pierre Renart at Hôtel de la Marine

Following on from Jeremy Maxwell Wintrebert in 2023 for the glass arts, cabinetmaker Pierre Renart is presenting an original work at Hôtel de la Marine with the Maison Parisienne gallery. Inspired by the theme of travel, he has taken over the quartermaster courtyard and its 18th-century architecture with Escale, an enveloping hammock made of charming wooden slats. It offers an incomparable view of the glorious diamond-shaped glass roof built by Hugh Dutton during the restoration of the building.

The iconic Renault 5 E-Tech electric

Renault 5 E-Tech electric is cruising into town. Renault is proud to invite the general public to an ephemeral "experience-store": MAISON5. From 15 June to 15 September, Renault 5 E-Tech electric will be showcased in a 1,800m² venue dedicated to creativity in all its forms: music, art, fashion, gastronomy, sport, tech, and design. During Paris Design Week, leading figures from the world of design will come together with Renault designers for fresh and original talks on automotive design. A true "R5VOLUTION".

Avant-garde workshops

In Paris, the pool of talent emerges from schools, associations, and collective workshops. They all fling their doors wide open for Paris Design Week, offering a vibrant panorama of modern creations.

Two exhibitions for the Campus d'Excellence de la Mode, des Métiers d'Art et du Design

The Campus is a network of training establishments based at the Manufacture des Gobelins, the aim of which is to promote some 50 schools in the Paris region. On 4 September, the Mobilier national Jeune Création Prize will be awarded for the fourth time. This year, the students were tasked with designing the layout of the future materials library to be installed in the Manufacture. Aimed at professionals in the fashion, arts, and design industries, the materials library will list a vast array of raw materials of all kinds, with a focus on their environmental impact. An exhibition in the Galerie des Gobelins showcases the nine finalists' projects. At the same time, the Galerie du CROUS on Rue des Beaux-Arts will be hosting an exhibition entitled Vivement Demain! A curation of works by young graduates from France's leading design schools, selected for their innovative, optimistic, and uplifting character.

Open days and doors at POUCH

Established in 2020, and housing 270 studios for visual artists, POUCH is Europe's largest arts incubator. Located in a former perfume factory in Aubervilliers, this unique venue is opening its doors for Paris Design Week for a "design" tour of creators from 40 different countries.

École Camondo celebrates its 80th anniversary!

Founded in 1944, École Camondo offers a five-year course to train future interior architects and designers, leading to a French state-approved Master's degree. Heirs to the French decorator and embroider industry, their current curriculum is at the crossroads of art, technology, and social and environmental practices. The teachers are all recognised professionals: Studio Brichet-Ziegler, Paul Marchesseau, Pierre Goncalons, Edgar Jayet, Charlotte Juillard, Festen, A+A Cooren... The school benefits from a unique setting, as it is part of the Arts Décoratifs, Musée Nissim de Camondo, and Ateliers du Carrousel ecosystem. In 2019, a new branch was opened in Toulon through the support of Toulon Provence Méditerranée, in conjunction with Villa Noailles Hyères. Among the list of former students, there are some brilliant names: Elisabeth Garouste, Jacques Grange, Pierre Paulin, Philippe Starck, and Jean-Michel Wilmotte. To mark its anniversary, the school is creating an original itinerary with its alumni taking part in Paris Design Week. What a way of underlining its vitality for its 80th year!

A platform for designs from all over the world

Designs and designers from all over the world find a resonance chamber for their creativity at Paris Design Week, thanks to the international professional influencers who come to Maison&Objet and Paris Design Week for inspiration.

MADE IN PORTUGAL Naturally. In a gallery in the Marais district of Paris, Portugal's Trade & Investment Agency is showcasing a large domestic space representative of the Portuguese way of life, designed by interior architect Margarida Moura Simão. As well as demonstrations of traditional manufacturing techniques, the exhibition features a selection of unique pieces by top Portuguese designers and brands.

The Nordic countries are in the spotlight at Maison&Objet, with the Rising Talents Awards honouring emerging designers from across northern Europe. In response, Parisian cultural centres are showcasing the very best of their national production. Head to Maison du Danemark on the Champs-Élysées for a breathtaking view of the Arc de Triomphe. The Institut Suédois courtyard has been transformed by an installation combining design, arts, and crafts.

Forêts Astrales presents a colourful lichen décor where objects, sculptures, and works of art frolic among the greenery. The Institut Finlandais is inviting Lokal Gallery, Helsinki's creative spearhead, to present a selection of artworks, objects, and sustainable design by nine contemporary creatives.

Ukrainian designers demonstrate their vitality within the confines of their embassy. These creatives have used the "elementary particles" of design – squares, circles, triangles, crosses, and spirals – to unleash their imagination using raw materials: clay, wood, wool, stone, metal... The message: transcending the boundaries of cultures and eras to take their place in a world of universal human heritage.

Designer Pierre Charrié took up a five-week residency in Indonesia with the support of the CushCush Gallery in Bali and the Institut Français d'Indonésie. Thus the Niskala collection was born, dedicated to the "invisible world" of spirits. Furniture and objects have been crafted by local artisans, investing both their soul and their expertise into a wide variety of materials.

Paris Design Week Factory - 7 rue Froissart, 75003 Paris

This year, France celebrates the 60th anniversary of its diplomatic ties with China. For several years now, Paris Design Week has been developing close links with its design ecosystem, which is very much open to international collaboration. The China Week exhibition shows different applications of Chinese design in the broadest sense, from the worlds of cars and gastronomy to urban architecture.

5 rue Bailly, 75003 Paris

On 4 September, for the second year running, the Institut du Monde Arabe will be awarding its Design Prize, with the aim of highlighting emerging and established designers in line with its "Arabofuturs" theme. The exhibition, bringing together projects ranging from objects to architecture, and representing local know-how, will be on show until 27 October.

New addresses to discover in Paris

Paris never sleeps, especially with inspiring new venues springing up every year. Paris Design Week is the perfect opportunity to update the list of unmissable addresses.

This year, Diptyque opened its new Maison, reflecting its rich universe in the broadest of senses. A cross between a boutique and a cultural space, this address showcases the artists and craftspeople who have always contributed their expertise to the perfumer. Contemporary art installations, workshops, and encounters around the art of home life and comforts, curated by Sarah Aldelman, former creator of the Colette concept store, enliven the décor, which has been chiselled by some of the great names in arts and crafts. A perfume library, a bathing salon, and a room of curiosities showcasing exclusive limited-edition handcrafted series for the Maison are just some of the surprises to be discovered in this unique and fragrant place.

The Pradier-Jeauneau duo, formed by Aurélien Jeauneau and Jérémy Pradier, had already made a name for themselves at the Paul Bert Serpette Market with their selection of modern furniture dating back to 1945. They are set to open their very first gallery in Paris, on Rue de Verneuil, during Paris Design Week. Fascinated by “figures who shape the times”, they asked interior architect and designer Sandra Benhamou to stage the first exhibition: “Le Commencement”. She will be displaying previously unseen pieces of her furniture, alongside a sofa and other pieces by designer Mathieu Delacroix, and paintings by artist Anaïs Vindel.

Collectible design – a taste for the unique

A far cry from the realm of industrial design, Paris takes a different path in its search for original forms, without limiting its possibilities or restricting its imagination. A number of galleries will showcase virtuoso and poetic contemporary creations, where design breaks down the boundaries with art.

Galerie BSL is diving into the abyss. Béatrice Saint Laurent asked her artists to draw their inspiration from the sea and oceans, their materials, and the organic forms of their flora and fauna. The Thalassa Fantastica exhibition brings together original sculptures by eight artists, including Nacho Carbonell, François Mascarello, Pia Maria Raeder, and Ayala Serfaty.

Galerie Gosserez is ready to cultivate the earth. A handful of soil and a sprinkling of water give birth to the young shoots of collectible design. This is the theme of the Terre-Eau exhibition, organised by Galerie Gosserez across its two galleries in the Marais district. The first is dedicated to earth, as a material for ceramics, for example, but also for everything that grows there: wood, foliage, flowers... The second, called Le Point G, is devoted to water, its mirror effects, the way it flows, pools, and drips...

Paris Design Week Factory: in search of tomorrow's great talents

Identifying future talent is one of many missions at Paris Design Week. With four exhibition venues at their disposal, young graduates can meet both the public and fellow professionals for the first time. Factory is also a fertile breeding ground for new associations and a launchpad for exciting careers.

Espace Commines: a cutting-edge curation of design collectibles. This year, it is under the watchful eyes of Thibault Huguet and Jean-Baptiste Anotin, from the Meet Met Met collective. Their association was founded when they exhibited side by side three years ago at Paris Design Week Factory. They have since gone their own way and gained ground, each with their own design studio. Both have seen their creations enter the collections of Mobilier national. Now it's their turn to pass the torch.

Galerie Joseph and Galerie Ellia: a panorama of young, international artists. Between two galleries just a few metres apart in the Marais district, new publishing houses, young graduates, and designers with less than five years' experience, working alone or in groups, are on show. Some come from continents away to compete against their French peers. A treasure trove of unprocessed gems.

Galerie Ellia - 10 rue de Turenne, 75004 Paris

China and its taste for design: The Chinese Way of Beauty is a dedicated area of the Factory, bringing together some 15 exhibitors representing the new Chinese aesthetic. Local and foreign brands and designers living in China are seizing traditional techniques and new technologies to give their vision of what "Chinese Beauty" can truly be. Foreign professionals are invited to come build collaborative bridges with this creative scene.

The artisan-decorator duo: the signature of Paris

With an exceptional network of craftspeople, Paris is an inexhaustible source of inspiration for interior designers. Works produced in tandem lead to rare and precious furniture collections, whose uniqueness attracts buyers from all over the world. These highly confidential collections can be discovered by following the AD itinerary of interior designers. From the metalworkers at Maison Pouenat to gilders of Ulgador, from alabaster lighting by Alain Ellouz and furniture by Moissonier to the bronzesmiths of Delisle, the range of expertise spans all the greatest names in interior design: Liaigre, Pinto, Gilles&Boissier, Christophe Delcourt, Anne-Sophie Pailleret, Maylis and Charles Tassin, and many more.

In its Paris gallery, the Manufacture de Sèvres is exhibiting a number of works by visual artist Xavier Veilhan, created in collaboration with the Manufacture's craftspeople.

Bel Ouvrage at Musée du Luxembourg

Grands Ateliers de France is celebrating its 30th anniversary with an exhibition of French decorative arts at the Orangerie du Musée du Luxembourg, featuring around some 100 contemporary works. Around 20 members of the association, including Lison de Caunes, Pierre Bonnefille, and Fanny Boucher, have been invited by curator Carole de Bonna to display their work alongside exclusive creations by Ronan Bouroullec and Mathias Kiss.

Department stores in the spotlight

As part of the Parisian landscape, and a reflection of the times, there was no way that Parisian department stores could miss Paris Design Week.

Galleries Lafayette Champs-Élysées is inviting three artists to partake in an immersive exhibition focusing on materials. Katarzyna Cichy is a Polish designer who works in Paris on jewellery and sculptures. Eve George and Laurent Fichot (Atelier George) are both designers and glassblowers. Together, they have imagined an exhibit where objects emerge from silver and glass...

Le Bon Marché is reviving the Atelier Pomone, created within its walls in 1923. Its mission was to offer quality furniture and objects. When it was first created, it was run by a master of Art Déco, Paul Follot. This new version still celebrates the expression “the beautiful is as useful as the useful”, with a first collection of delicate tableware, complemented by exclusive creations by Franco-Swiss designer Julie Richoz.

BHV Marais is taking a step back in time by bringing the 70s back to life. In an ultra-vibrant flower-power-pop atmosphere, it showcases iconic pieces of design, particularly from leading Italian designers.

Printemps is celebrating 25 years of partnership with Made In Design this year. To mark the occasion, this furniture, lighting, and accessories retailer is offering its aficionados a bouquet of limited series of re-editions of design icons in exclusive colours. The capsule collection includes 500 units of the cordless Flowerpot lamp by Verner Panton for &Tradition, in tangerine red, and 500 Componibili storage units by Anna Castelli Ferrieri for Kartell, in ocean blue.

Ville de Paris / Bureau du Design, Mode et Métiers d’art

The Bureau du Design, de la Mode et des Métiers d’Art implements the City of Paris’s policy in favour of creative professions. Through a range of schemes, it supports emerging and established companies and entrepreneurs in the development of their business. Working with professional and institutional partners, the Bureau federates and drives the Parisian ecosystem of local design and manufacture, raising its profile both in France and internationally. It is therefore only natural that the Bureau has always worked hand in hand with Paris Design Week. Together, they have launched a number of proposals: the call for projects for the Design sur cours itinerary, which involves a number of Parisian venues such as libraries, museums, and parks, and the Graphisme à ciel ouvert itinerary, which takes place in public spaces to give graphic design a new lease of life.

Galerie Joseph

Galerie Joseph was founded in 2008 by Michael Timsit, artist, designer, and entrepreneur. The group now boasts more than 25 venues, most of them in the Marais district, which host major cultural events such as Paris Design Week and ImageNation, a festival of contemporary photography, as well as exhibitions by contemporary artists from France and abroad. Michael Timsit, an art lover and major collector, wished to extend the experience of this cultural ebullience through a digital magazine that highlights all the players who are questioning and shaking up our vision of the world. Design, Architecture, Art, Photography, Fashion Sphere, Voyage, Gastronomy, and Trends... Inspired by these keywords, Acumen magazine was created with the aim of passing on knowledge, discovering expertise, and sharing unique and exceptional experiences. Throughout Paris Design Week, its official partner Galerie Joseph will be distributing media content on its social networks and in Acumen magazine.

Festival du Monde

Le Monde à la Une: 80 years, 80 unique lamps

Eighty lamps that tell the story of Le Monde and the world, on sale as of 5 September: this is the unique operation dreamt up by designers Claire Renard and Jean-Sébastien Blanc, from Studio 5.5, in partnership with TetraPak, to celebrate the 80th anniversary of the newspaper.

For the last three years, these designers and pioneers of upcycling have been working to create the set design for Festival du Monde, based on waste from the newspaper's printing works. A "village square" will be open to from 20 to 22 September, for the 10th edition of the Festival, which will be held under our bridge-building in Austerlitz.

To take this circular design approach a step further and give readers the chance to bring a piece of the worldly Monde home with them, Claire Renard and Jean-Sébastien Blanc have come up with a collection of 80 unique light fittings made from cardboard, newspaper, and recycled TetraPak packaging.

Each e-reader in the "Le Monde à la Une" collection is numbered from 1944 to 2023, and printed with a historic Le Monde front page from the corresponding year, reflecting current events and the state of the world at the time. This exclusive series also tells the story of the newspaper's development, its layout, and the emergence of press cartoons and photography, for example.

During Paris Design Week, a circular light installation will showcase this collection, like a round-the-world tour in 80 lamps.

They will then be exhibited at Festival du Monde in the editorial offices in the 13th arrondissement.

About Paris Design Week

Created in 2010 by Maison&Objet, Paris Design Week aims to bring the city to life every September, raising awareness among the general public and professionals alike of the latest trends and thinking in the world of design, decoration and the art of living.

Organised in parallel with the Maison&Objet show, Paris Design Week is an opportunity to discover new things and meet people in showrooms, boutiques and galleries, as well as in institutions such as museums and schools. It's a meeting place for all those involved in design.

With a focus on emerging talent, Paris Design Week aims to be a springboard for young talent, giving them the opportunity to showcase their work in an exceptional setting, with the city as a backdrop.

Paris Design Week is also an opportunity for families, design lovers and the curious to experience Paris in a different light, thanks to temporary installations in the city's cultural venues, created by designers and open free of charge to all.

Punctuated by vernissage evenings and talks, Paris Design Week puts conviviality and exchange at the heart of its programme, bringing together professionals and the general public to share the essence of design at the crossroads of commerce and culture. Follow Paris Design Week on social networks.

About Maison&Objet

Maison&Objet (SAFI, a joint subsidiary of Ateliers d'Art de France and RX France) has been leading and bringing together the international decoration, design, and lifestyle community since 1994.

Its trademark is its ability to elicit productive international meetings, to drive the visibility of the brands that join its exhibitions and its digital platform, but also its singular instinct for highlighting the trends that will set the heart of the interior design planet racing. Maison&Objet's mission is to reveal talent, to offer opportunities for discussion and inspiration both online and offline, and to facilitate the development of businesses.

With two annual exhibitions and Paris Design Week in September, Maison&Objet serves as an indispensable barometer for the entire sector. Online since 2016, MOM (Maison&Objet and More) allows buyers and brands to continue their exchanges, launch new collections, and make contacts beyond physical meetings. Weekly launches of new products provide an ongoing boost to the industry. In 2023, Maison&Objet rolled out new digital services, and MOM also became a marketplace.

On social networks, discoveries are made on a daily basis by a community of almost 2 million active professionals on Facebook, Instagram (+1M followers), Twitter/X, LinkedIn, Xing, WeChat, and now TikTok.

Spearheading the Paris Capitale de la Création label, Maison&Objet is a catalyst for positioning Paris as a major magnet for international creative talents.
